

Eligibility to apply for the ANU Global Programs Student Exchange Program

1. Have completed at least 48 units (one full year of study) at ANU by the time you go on exchange *

You will be required to have successfully completed at least 48 units at the ANU at the time of going on exchange.

 Some degrees, such as Law, may only allow you to go on exchange after having completed more than 1 year of full-time study. Also, some partners may have restrictions that do not permit students to study with them until their third year of undergraduate study.*

2. Have 24 units in your degree to go on exchange

You will need to have at least 24 units to complete in your degree program to be utilised for when you are on exchange, unless:

- you will be in your final semester of your ANU degree (and still have 18 units to complete)
- you are registered with ANU Access and Inclusion and have official documentation from there that recommends or confirms that due to your personal circumstances you would prefer a reduced study load

In the case where you do not have 24 units left in the last semester of your degree program you can maintain a 'full time load' by studying the equivalent of 18 units on exchange.

3. Have a GPA of 4 or above (a pass average) at the time of processing of your application and going on exchange. Certain selected, restricted partners require a GPA of 6 or above.

All courses studied in your current academic level at university (ie all your undergraduate studies, or all your postgraduate coursework studies) are considered when calculating your GPA. You will need to maintain your overall grade average at pass or better or your application will be withdrawn and exchange cancelled. A GPA calculator can be found here.

4. Meet the requirements of your College/s

Some Colleges may have specific requirements which must be met and this may affect your eligibility. These include such things as the need to have completed 48 units in their degree program or to complete a specific course or number of courses at ANU.

If your exchange application is to an ANU language partner (studying any or all your courses in French, German, Italian or Spanish) you will need to be approved by the appropriate ANU language convener that you are already sufficient to study in the target language at university level or will be sufficient to study at university level by the time you will depart.

The ANU Global Programs Student Exchange Program may also be open to graduate research students who have received appropriate approval to participate. Please check directly with your College and ANU Global Programs before applying.

Nomination to an ANU partner institution may be based upon the following selection criteria:

- GPA
- A written statement of purpose (selected, restricted partners)
- number of applications received for particular partners
- number of exchange places available at particular partners
